

Latest information about the effects of the Corona virus on ARNOLD UMFORMTECHNIK

As of March 13th, 2020

Dear Sirs,

Sadly, the Corona virus has now spread into many other countries from its source in China, and it is now assumed that the number of cases will continue to rise. So it is even more important for us to keep you, as our customers and partners, regularly informed as much as possible about our current supply situation. So we would like to make you aware of the protective measures that we have made and of any effects this may have on our supply situation.

We have already taken the following preventative measures:

- We have taken strict protective measures and introduced hygiene rules for all our workers.
- We have banned all business travel to current areas of risk
- We are restricting personal contact with customers, suppliers and visitors
- We are postponing or cancelling events and trade fairs
- We are ensuring that operations can continue by introducing home working rules, etc.

What effect will this have on supplies to our customers?

- At present, supplies of raw materials, auxiliary and operating materials are assured for the immediate future. We are therefore optimistic that we can supply and deliver to our customers.
- In the event of an increase in incoming orders due to the situation, delivery lead times may have to be extended. Please therefore take note of the information on our confirmations of order.

We will continue to keep you updated with the measures we take and effects they might have.

Please be assured that we are giving this situation our maximum attention, and focussing all our efforts to ensure that our customers continue to be supplied, and as far as possible to keep any detrimental effects to a minimum. Should you have any queries about your particular supply situation, your usual representative will be happy to answer them.
